

In 1890 Tampa, Florida was the recipient of an influx of Cuban workers. Vicente Martinez Ybor took advantage of their skills and had them work in his factory making cigars. The small city outside of Tampa was named Ybor City. It was during this time when the Cuban sandwich was perfected. The Cuban is also known as a mixto for its combo of meats. We get our bread from the finest bakery in Ybor City La Saganda, who opened their doors in 1915.
